My dear Mr. Ambassador:

You have asked if I would act as legal counsel for the French Embassy. I will be pleased to so act upon the following terms:

1. The legal services to be rendered by me and our firm are to be on an annual retainer basis of $2000.00 per year, plus out-of-pocket disbursements for travel, cables, etc. This retainer is to cover ordinary legal services rendered to the Embassy. This retainer will run for six months, at the end of which time we will both review the situation to see whether it should be continued and if so, whether any change should be made in it in the light of the six months' experience.

2. For legal services out of the ordinary, such as litigation or matters of unusual importance or requiring unusual expenditure of time by us, a fee in addition to the retainer will be payable. I have implicit faith in your judgment, and the amount of this additional fee shall be what you deem fair based on the time involved, the services rendered and the results produced.

In all cases of the type covered by paragraph 2, it is understood that I will advise you in advance that I think the case is of the nature which would involve the payment of a special fee in addition to the retainer, and there will be no liability for a special fee until you first agree that the case is a special fee one.

Sincerely yours,

/s/ Oscar Cox

His Excellency,
Henri Bonnet,
Ambassador of France,
Washington, D. C.
